At the heart of local trade

WHETHER it is Marilyn Monroe, Angelina Jolie or Cheryl Cole, one thing all iconic beauties have in common is great-looking skin.

But don't be fooled – even those blessed with natural good looks still need to lavish attention on their skin to enhance and preserve their beauty.

“There is an ever-increasing array of treatments available but there is a vast difference between simply offering basic filler and botulinum toxin treatments and the type of bespoke service we offer at our clinic,” says Dr Paul Charlson, medical director of the Skinquire Clinic, in Brough.

“Cheek and chin augmentation is a skilled procedure which really helps to replace the volume lost by aging or dieting.

“Many celebrities are now having these procedures as they do produce an instantly more youthful look.”

Pigmentation is a huge problem. Skinquire now offers a unique advanced skin peel which works on melanocytes to prevent the formation of brown pigment.

The peel also rejuvenates the skin leaving a clearer, radiant complexion. This peel has excellent results and high patient satisfaction.

Dermarollers are used to improve skin texture and can be used for acne scarring and stretch marks. These are better value than many resurfacing lasers and are producing promising results at a fraction of the price of laser treatment.

Sculptra or “the liquid facelift” is an advanced treatment producing subtle, natural and long-lasting lift to the face.

It can also be used in the cleavage and backs of the hands to improve the skin quality.

Aging leads to sunken tear troughs, making the face look drawn and tired.

Dr Charlson can fill in the sunken area beneath the eyes making them look much brighter and more youthful.

Acne is not only a problem for teenagers. Skinquire helps patients of all ages who are distressed about this condition and need advice and support.

Whatever your requirements, Skinquire's experts can discuss them with you.

They have the skill to keep pace with new technology in this fast-changing and exciting field and the experience to advise on the best treatment for the best results for your skin.
